No worries,

<http://semspub.epa.gov/src/collection/HQ/SC32313> is the CSTAG Group collection. I start putting the other sites into this same collection

I think the document you want is #212913

Sorry, I wasn't sure of the date till you sent me the first document, which was responding to this other document.

Too bad all the links were broken when the web pages were all changed up. It's going to take forever to restore everything, no?

Thanks, but I am looking for the April 1, 2008 memo from CSTAG to Region 2, called "CSTAG Recommendations for the Lower Passaic River Site."

Eventually, I can get the document from a colleague. Don't spend any more time looking for it.

But can I assume that eventually, I will be able to go to the webpage with all the CSTAG sites, and access the documents for each site that CSTAG has reviewed from that web page? I mean, in the future, we won't get sent back to some kind of search page I hope.

Let me know if this is not the correct document. The title and pages are exactly the same. Still looking for the exact document.

Comments:

I am trying to find CSTAG documents on the "new improved" website. After many clicks, I got to a page that listed CSTAG documents for each site, but there are no links on that page. Instead, it tells me to use the Search Superfund Documents function. But that just takes me to another page with a bunch of links. I tried searching each one and none brought me to the CSTAG documents. I also tried the Online Document Repository. I've now wasted about an hour looking for documents that used to be easily found on the CSTAG website. This is very, very frustrating and I am at my wits end. Where are the CSTAG documents? Could you please put links on the CSTAG page so people can find them? This is what I am referring to by the way:
<http://www2.epa.gov/superfund/superfund-contaminated-sediments-technical-advisory-group-cstag>

Generally, when a web page addresses a certain topic, it would be extremely useful to have the links to the related documents on that page, instead of linking to multiple additional locations. This just becomes a hall of mirrors. I used to rely on Google to find EPA documents, and now that is not useful either.

Sorry for the rant but I am under a lot of time pressure at work and my job just got a lot harder with this web redesign.
